

Examples of intersectional Micro-aggressions	What type(s) of oppression does this statement fall into? AND who does this micro-aggression target?	How can we fix it?
“You’re only gay because you haven’t met the right girl/boy yet. You’re still young. You’ll see.”
“You got your hair done/did! I like your straight hair so much better! I think girls look so pretty with long hair.”
“You seem so cool! I always wanted a gay best friend when I was younger”
We’ll save discussing sexual protection for when you’re a little more mature. You’re supposed to wait until marriage anyway because of your religion right?
You don’t want to wait until you have children to get the IUD? I see on your chart that you’re lesbian. Why would you need an IUD?
I just don’t understand why Black Lives Matter is up in arms about police killing men. Women are killed all the time and people are silent.
You’re so pretty! I’m sure your dad has to beat the boys away with a stick!

“Let your parents know that going to the doctor has to be a priority and that they will need their SS card next time”
“Oh! I’m surprised you know that! Not many young people know about Henrietta Lacks!”
“I just don’t think rioting as a form of protest is a way to evoke change, and it’s definitely not a place for young people”
“You are so smart for your age and very articulate”
“You have to be on time next time ok? I know it takes a while for you to get up the steps but you have to be here when your appointment begins.”
“Do you like being so covered? I’ve been reading and it seems like women have to be covered and wear a hijab because they have to, not because they want to.”
